RUMORS CONCERNING THE A. & C. RAILROAD.

Trains Started on the Road Yesterday.

[SPECIAL TO DAILY CHRONICLE.]

CHATTANOOGA, July 1.

Chattanooga is filled with a thousand rumors concerning the Alabama and Chattanooga Road. It is rumored that Stanton has been superseded as Superintendent by M. J. Ross, formerly of the Memphis Road, and it is generally believed that the change is attributed to Governor Lindsay, but no legal proceedings have ever been instituted of any kind. We called on Stanton for facts and he says he appointed Ross assistant on account of the press of business. He retains his old position.

The train started this morning. A through passenger train, with a mail and Pullman car leaves to-night, when the regular schedule begins.

The creditors are generally satisfied that it is the best policy for them and Chattanooga.

The Times' course is much censured.

There is great anxiety among the business men to run the road, for most of their trade comes from Alabama.

A roller of the Roane Iron Mill broke this morning, delaying work till Wednesday.

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—The Committee on Statistics and Information made a report upon the growing cotton and grain crop with dates from the 15th to the 25th of June. The following is a summary:

MISSISSIPPI.

Cotton, reduction of acreage twenty to twenty-five per cent, with an average of half to three quarters the yield of last year per acre. Corn acreage has increased twenty-five to forty per cent. The latest reports indicate a short yield per acre.

TEXAS.

The information received is mostly from the northeast portion of the State. The reduction of cotton acreage is from 25 to 33 per cent, with a corresponding increase in grain. Cotton is two weeks backward, though with a favorable season, an average crop is expected.

TENNESSEE.

The information is confined to the western part of the State. Cotton has decreased in acreage from 5 to 12 per cent, with prospects for an average yield per acre. There is considerable increase in the acreage of grain, with good prospects.

ALABAMA.

The reduction of the cotton acreage is ten to twenty per cent. The crop is three weeks backward. The average production per acre will be less than last year.

The increased acreage of grain is from twenty to thirty per cent, with a fair prospect.

GEORGIA.

The cotton accounts are meagre, embracing the west center and center of the State, and thence northeast. The decrease in acreage is from twenty to thirty-three and a half per cent in the North-east and twelve and a half to fifteen in other sections heard from.

The condition is unpromising; one-half to three-quarters per acre of last year's yield is expected from a corresponding increase of acreage.

ARKANSAS.

Cotton, reduction of acreage twenty-five to thirty-three per cent, with proportionate increase of gain; the proportion is generally good except in the southern portion of the State, where not more than half of last year's yield per acre is anticipated. The grain crop is very promising.

LOUISIANA.

Cotton, reduction of acreage ten to twelve per cent. The crops are three weeks backward, and are considerably injured, especially in the low lands by rain and lice. Corn is nearly sufficient for home consumption planted.

Family Feud.

The case of H. C. Scott, tried yesterday in the Criminal Court, is one illustrating the evil effect of family feuds. A house divided against itself cannot stand, and beside the unpleasantness and mortification of such occurrences they are morally wrong, and frequently the cause of ill will is handed down from father to son, and engenders feelings akin to those animating the Corsican in his remorseless vendetta.

The Scott family, we are told, have divided their property and even the children, some remaining with their father and others with the mother, and the difficulty in question grew out of a trifling matter. One of the girls went to a spring to get a bucket of water and in passing her brother accidentally spilled some of the water on his foot.

This enraged him to such an extent, that he seized the girl and beat her severely, and held her head in the spring until she was in danger of drowning. She then took out a warrant, and he was fined for the offense and required to give bond to keep the peace, as she was afraid to live at home without he was restrained from violence by law.

In order to prevent such occurrences, the amenities and courtesies of good society should be taught and practiced in the family circle as well as away from home. If good behavior is habitual, it is easily told, and it grows gracefully on a person when it is simply acted for the occasion. In the latter event, awkwardness and restraint are plainly manifest to the most casual observer, and the true standing of the individual is correctly set down in the mind.

Railroad Items.

The number of through passengers on the road last night was small, owing to the fact that connection was made only from Lynchburg.

In a few days, however, the traveling public will not be slow to avail themselves of the facilities offered.

Alex. Stewart, who was arrested at Cleveland for misdemeanors committed here, made his escape from custody. The officer having him, in charge permitted him to go to the house of a friend, and he availed himself of the opportunity and left.

Incorrect News.

We are informed by a gentleman just from Memphis that the telegraphic account of the accident on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, near Lafayette, mentioned in yesterday's dispatches, is incorrect. The newsboy was on the passenger train going east, and falling between the cars was run over and killed. When the freight train was met his body was placed on board, and the freight train afterwards ran off the track, by which accident two brakemen were killed.

Generals Sherman and Marcy.

The following is an extract from the official journal of Generals Sherman and Marcy's tour through Texas during the months of April, May, and June of the present year:

"This afternoon about 4 o'clock several Kiowa chiefs, among them Satanta, Satank, Kicking Bird, and Lone Wolf, came to the agency to draw their rations."

"In a talk with the agents Satanta said he, with one hundred warriors, had made the recent attack upon the train between Forts Richardson and Belknap; that they had killed seven teamsters and driven off forty-one mules."

"This he considered a meritorious act, and said that if any other Indian claimed the credit of it he would be a liar, that he was the man that commanded. He pointed out to them another chief as having been with him in the action."

General Sherman immediately ordered the three chiefs to be arrested and turned over to the civil authorities. The journal goes on to state that, "Satanta, seeing that he was likely to get into trouble, replied that, although he was present at the fight, yet he did not kill any one himself, neither did he blow his bugle; that the young men wanted to have a little fight and take a few white scalps, and he was prevailed upon to go with them merely to show how to make war, but that he stood back during the engagement and gave directions."

"This plea did not satisfy General Sherman. The murderers were turned over to the civil authorities. The General thinks that it is the only way to do in such cases. His journal goes on as follows:

"The benevolent civilizing, peace policy so urgently advocated by a class in the Eastern States has received a long and expensive trial with these Indians. They have been regularly fed, and the kindest treatment extended to them for two years by our authorities, but it has not had the slightest effect. They have no more conception of gratitude than so many wolves, and they have continually been stealing horses and mules, murdering men, ravishing women, and enslaving children; besides, they have not only openly acknowledged, but have boasted of these atrocities. There was hardly a day during our trip through the frontier settlements of Texas that we did not hear of some persons who had suffered from Indian raids, and there seems to be no prospect of their ceasing. The question has resolved itself into this: that the border settlers of Texas must all be annihilated, or the Indians chastised and disarmed."

"Many of them have the best modern arms and they know how to use them well, which has given them confidence in their ability to cope with the whites in battle. They kill the buffalo with the bow and arrow, and this is about the only animal they hunt. They reserve all their ammunition for war purposes, and it is a well known fact that they will sacrifice almost anything to get ammunition."

THE MAD WOLF.

Death of One of the Victims from Hydrophobia.

A letter received yesterday by Mr. M. K. Sherwood, of this city, from Col. C. H. Cawker, of Cawker City, Kansas, gives the unexpected intelligence that the boy, Nebraska Stevens, who was bitten by a mad wolf about the 20th of May, died a few days ago of hydrophobia. The wolf attacked the dogs on Mr. Stevens' farm, about sunrise, when the boy ran to the assistance of the dogs, intending to shoot the wolf. The animal, as soon as he laid eyes on young Stevens, attacked him; the boy, becoming confused, only brought his pistol to a half cock, and the weapon failed to go off when the trigger was pulled. The wolf got the boy down and tore his face very severely, till Mr. Stevens, attracted by the screams of his son, went to his aid, and, with the assistance of the dogs, succeeded in driving the wolf off. The animal attacked a man named Carter about an hour afterwards, and was shot and killed by Mr. King Belk, who went to Carter's assistance. This wolf attacked the camp of some herdsmen near Cawker, the night before he bit young Stevens, when, in endeavoring to drive him from among the cattle, two of the herdsmen, named Selbig and Slayback, were injured by the wolf. Slayback on the cheek and Selbig on the nose; but it was thought that these wounds were the result of scratches and not bites. The whole party came to this city for medical advice, and Slayback is now at his home in the neighborhood of Easton. The wolf was judged to be mad from the strangeness of its behavior, and the death of young Stevens proves that it was mad.

Horace Greeley.

Mr. Greeley has written the following letter to Mr. J. A. Beecher, proprietor of a monthly magazine at Trenton, N. J.:

NEW YORK TRIBUNE, NEW YORK, May 21, 1871.

DEAR SIR: I know of nothing in my habits that deserve public attention. I was formerly called a "Grahamite"; that is, I rarely ate meat. And it is still my conviction that meat should be eaten very sparingly, if at all. However, like other folks, not having time to make myself disagreeable to every body by insisting on special food wherever I go, since I travel much and eat in many places in the course of a year, I ceased to drink distilled liquors January 1, 1824, when I was not quite thirteen years old. I occasionally drank beer four or five years after, when I abandoned that also. I cannot remember that I ever more than tasted wine. I stopped drinking coffee about 1834, because it made my hand tremble. I am opposed to nerves. I did not drink tea for a quarter of a century, ending in 1861, when I had insisted that I should drink either claret or tea, and I chose the tea, which (black) I have generally used since, though not uniformly. My favorite exercise is trimming up trees in a forest with an ax, cutting out underbrush, etc. I wish I could take more of it, but my farm is distant and my family scattered. I sometimes lift weights at the Lifting Cure. I have only lifted 255 pounds since I became sixty years old, February 3d last.

HORACE GREELEY.

Alexander H. Stephens, in his paper, the Columbus (Ga.) Sun, says that the "idea of adopting a Radical platform to elect a Democratic President is as sensible as burning down a house to clean it of fleas."

Drs. Carlton and Lanahan at Peace.

Dr. Carlton and Dr. Lanahan passed the day yesterday seated, as usual, together in the elegantly fitted Agents' room at the Book Concern. Dr. Carlton says his only reason for resigning was the unpleasant predicament into which he is thrown by the Bishops' action. "How," he asks, "would any one like to be placed at the head of such an establishment as this, with a man for second in command who had said such things of him as Dr. Lanahan has said about me? I determined I would not stay here under those circumstances, and I placed my resignation in the hands of a member of the Committee the night before it was read, and then I went home and had a better night's sleep than I've had in a long time. Now that the Committee has refused to accept the resignation, I must stay and get on with the work the best I can. This great concern cannot go unattended to. The situation is unpleasant, but I must make the best of it." The Doctor spoke "with heart and heat and force" about the matter of the frauds, offering, if any one will show that he has misappropriated the Missionary Society's money, or anybody else's money, to give them all his property.

Dr. Lanahan said, smilingly, that everything would be harmonious between the Agents, for they never had differed on business matters. He should, as in duty bound, go on with his work in the bindery, and had no doubt all would go smoothly till the time of final settlement in the General Conference.

HOW A WOMAN KEEPS A SECRET.

It is an old quip upon women that a woman cannot keep secrets, but the fact is that they are the only part of humanity that can. A wife keeps a husband's secret incomparably better than he does hers. We could cite a thousand and one drunken wives, husbands, in gambling, licentiousness, lying, cheating, hypocrisy, coquetry, there is pretty near the same proportion. Yet of the four hundred and ninety-nine wives, four hundred conceal, cover up, silently endure the terrible secret, while the one husband mourns over his wife's frailty in the study of his pastor, and to the ear of his friend, and probably complains of it to a court of law. It is the same between brother and sister. The secrets a woman talks about are of the kind that are unimportant and mostly agreeable to hear. But of serious secrets she is as reticent as the grave. That is our observation, and in our various relations of physician, lawyer, and unordained minister, we have had opportunities for a great deal of observation.

Closing Exercises of Spout Spring Academy.

Mrs. E. P. Danforth's school at Spout Spring Academy, near McMullan's Station, came to a close on Friday last. The house was well filled with the friends of the school who had come out to witness the exercises of the day. The morning was devoted to examining the different classes, and the prompt and correct manner in which the many very difficult questions were answered spoke well for the management of the school, and reflected credit upon all concerned.

At noon an intermission was given, during which the young ladies spread an excellent repast, which all greatly enjoyed.

In the afternoon the audience were entertained with rehearsals and compositions, all of which were both interesting and instructive. Testimonials were awarded to a number of pupils for good conduct during school, after which all retired to their respective abodes, long to remember the feasts of the day.

Speak Kindly to Him.

A farmer was saved by a very poor boy from drowning. After his restoration, he said to him:

"What can I do for you, my boy?"

"Speak a kind word to me sometimes," replied the boy, as the tears gushed from his eyes. "I ain't got a mother like some of them."

A kind word? Think of it. That farmer had it in his power to give that poor boy money, clothes, playthings, but the poor boy craved nothing so much as a kind word now and then. If the farmer had ever so little heart the boy must certainly have had the wish gratified.

A kind word? You have many of them spoken to you daily, and you don't think much of their value; but that poor boy in your village at whom everybody laughs, would think that he had found a treasure if some one would speak a kind word to him. Suppose you speak it next time you meet him, instead of laughing at him. Then watch him and see how he looks.

Twenty years ago the whole amount of improved land in Minnesota was only a few hundred acres. Ten years ago it had increased to more than half a million acres, and in 1870 the total land amounted to 1,893,316 acres. The population has increased in about the same ratio. Thus, in 1850 the whole number of people in Minnesota was only 5,000; in 1860 it was 170,000, and in 1870, 440,000. The foreign population of the State is 160,000, and it is said that no other State has obtained so large a proportion of hardy and industrious foreigners. Norway and Sweden have contributed 37,000 emigrants, and Germany nearly 50,000.

California State Republican Ticket.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Mr. Newton North has been nominated by acclamation for Governor by the Republican State Convention on an anti-railway subsidy platform, which is almost identical with the platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention. It demands from the national government the abrogation of the treaty with China, and the prohibition of further Chinese immigration, and fully indorses President Grant and his administration.

"I weeded my friends," said an eccentric old man, "by hanging a piece of stair-carpet out of my first-floor window, with a constable's announcement affixed. It had the desired effect. I soon saw who were my friends. It was like firing a gun at a pigeon-house. They forsook the building at the first report, and I have not had occasion to use the extra flaps of my dining-table since."

Henry Ward Beecher says: "It will scarcely be denied that men are superior to women, as men; and that women are immeasurably superior to men, as women; while both of them together are more than a match for either of them separately."

The King of the Cannibal Islands is in trouble.

He has lately become a reformer and attempted a little restrictive legislation, enacting a law to prohibit the use of missionaries as an article of food; but the godless Eijians resented this interference with their liberty, and have risen in revolt. So the good King Thingumbo has been compelled to take up arms against the rebellious cannibals, and we suppose his projected visit to the United States will have to be postponed.

The Chicago Tribune asks and receives $22,000 for a column of advertisements one year.

The business men of Chicago are keen to pay it. There is one house in Cincinnati that pays $4,000 a week for advertising. There are several in Cleveland, even, who pay as high as $10,000 a year. Somehow these don't break up; a liberal advertiser never does.—Springfield Republican.

In a certain cemetery in a town in Connecticut, can be found a lot containing five graves in the center, the others near by at the four points of the compass. The inscriptions on the latter read, respectively after the name of the deceased:

"My I. Wife," "My II. Wife," "My III. Wife," "My IV. Wife," while the center stone bears the brief but eloquent expression, "Our Husband."

Mr. Frank O'Connor, a stone-cutter at Ithaca, New York, has been able, while working at his trade, to store away a mass of general and scientific knowledge, as well as to practice drawing and study Latin and French.

Some paper has come out in favor of John T. Hoffman for President and Allen G. Thurman for Vice-President. The Cincinnati Commercial, appropriately, calls it a Kangaroo ticket.
